

BEHAVIORAL CHALLENGES AT DAY CAMP

Some children are just meant for camp and the activities it offers. Other children struggle with the most basic aspects of going to camp. Why do they behave the way they do? What can we do about it? This workshop helps camp staff understand common reasons for children's perplexing behaviors, how to help these children, and how to communicate effectively with parents.

I am a psychotherapist with many years experience teaching and consulting to schools and other programs.

Participants will learn strategies to address behavior problems in the day camp setting, such as:

- Following directions
- Children who have trouble separating from parents at drop off
- Kids who get lost in the shuffle from one activity to the next
- Getting along with peers
- Keeping it together during unstructured times

This workshop will also help you talk with parents about their children's challenging behavior

Who should participate in this group?

- Camp Directors
- Site Supervisors
- Lead Counselors
- Other Camp Staff

Dates and Times: Saturday, June 3rd from 9:30am – 12:30pm

Location: 3514 Geary Boulevard (Inner Richmond Neighborhood of San Francisco)

Fee: $150

To Sign Up: Please call Chad Kordt-Thomas at 415-596-0293 or email chad@kordt-thomas.com

Space is limited to nine people.

Private Consultation: If you are not able to attend the workshop, I am happy to provide consultation to you or your staff. Please call the number above to arrange for an initial phone call.

Workshop Leader, Chad Kordt-Thomas, LCSW, MSW, MS.Ed.

I am a child and family psychotherapist who works with children of all ages and with a range of challenges. I treat children with developmental and learning disabilities, sensory-motor processing difficulties, and speech/language challenges. I worked previously as a preschool and elementary school teacher, education director of a children's museum and of a children's theater, and as a camp counselor.